Economics Club Convention.
May 4, 1916.

Dear Club Girls:

I will have to tell you about the district convention we held in San Antonio last Friday and Saturday before we take up any other news in this club letter.

There were delegates from Nueces, Cameron, Medina, Bexar and Uvalde counties. They enjoyed all of the convention proceedings and the crowds on the streets. We watched the battle of flowers and the parade with much interest, and the gorgeous floats were much admired. I am sure the girls of the convention have told all their friends about the delightful music we had in the park and the kindness the boy scouts in assisting us in building camp fires and hauling the boom. The reception at the lovely Brackenridge home was the culmination of the convention pleasure.

Spigle also got two hits, one of which was this little old ball game, as mentioned. Starnes was there with his usual pep, and got to first or thereabouts, often enough to justify our claim that he is the best lead-off man in these woods. The entire team played with pep and won a game they deserved.

The players who deserve mention from Devine were Strauss, who was the entire team, and Fried, who pitched. His Fried-chicken is a real pitcher. He would look well on our pay roll.

Assessor Heath Alert.

Tax Assessor L. E. Heath visited the Medina Lake last week end, ostensibly on a fishing trip but the outcome of the visit shows that this disciple of Sir Isaac Walton was not entirely on pleasure bent. Numerous wealthy people are known to be maintaining magnificent boats on the lake, both for fishing and sporting purposes, and an examination of the assessor's rolls failed to show where the owners of this numerous craft had signified their purpose of contributing their mite to the support of the institutions of the state and county by making proper contributions—purely an oversight of course. Assessor Heath viewed the fleet of vessels, admired their luxuriant appointments, casually inquired their value, etc., not, however, divulging to the enthusiastic mariners that he was the county tax assessor. Getting all the information possible Mr. Heath returned home, secured his tax bills and again appeared upon the scene, this time in his capacity as tax assessor. We are not advised as how much the boats had depreciated in value in the couple of days intervening between the visit of Mr. Heath and Assessor Heath, but the jovial assessor is not complaining, as his second visit to West Texas' fishing and pleasure resort augmented the tax rolls of Medina County some $22,000.

T. B. C. Entertained.

The girls met April 25th with Mary Kampf as hostess. It had been some time since the last meeting and all seemed so glad to see each other.

One member who had been away some time was there in all her glory much to the delight of the girls, and if teaching makes all as witty as it did this one all of us girls may teach—if it is only one.

Laughing and talking seemed to be more popular than sewing but probably the "hope boxes" are filled or else "hope" has taken wings.

Refreshments of punch and sandwiches were served and what delicious sandwiches. Some had left their appetites at home and we wondered whose they had.

After refreshments we had a number of jokes and a little slight of hand performance given by one of our guests, but some did not think it so slight.

Those present were: Lola Buchanan, Pearlie Newton, Ethel Rogers, Abbie Bradley, Lizzie Schaefer, Sivia Haas, Bebbie Mae Chaney, Mesdames Crain and McField and Marie and Dora Filigman, guests. CONTRIBUTED.

Miss Darby Entertained.

Last Saturday evening Miss Myrtle Parsons delightedly entertained in honor of Miss Edith Darby of Edna.

ARE THE FARMERS DELINTED?

The report recently issued by the Warehouse and Marketing Department of Texas, from which the following is taken, has occasioned considerable comment in the press of the state: "Cotton seed crushed in Texas: 921,978 tons in 1914; 776,248 tons in 1915; a decrease of 145,730 tons.

"Production of linters in Texas: 141,970 bales in 1914; 157,142 bales in 1915; an increase of 15,172 bales.

"It took approximately 6½ tons of seed to produce a bale of linters in 1914, while in 1915 a bale of linters was ginned from 4 1-3 tons of seed. If the same pro rata of ginning of 1914 (6½ tons of seed per bale) was applied to 1915 the actual production would be 119,698 bales, instead of 157,142 bales, or a difference in the ginner's favor of 37,534 bales estimated at 500 pounds each, netting them, at seven cents per pound, the handsome profit of $1,313,690.

"Ordinarily, as you know, linters go into consumption as fillers through cotton mills, or wadding for mattresses, or in shoddy or felt works; but we know that linters are bringing 7½ cents today against three-fourths of a cent a pound at this time last year, the conviction is strong that they are being used for some other purpose, and that purpose is not far to seek, viz: explosives. A rise from three-fourths of a cent a pound to 7½ cents for linters is phenomenal, and the price is responsible beyond any question of doubt for the increase of 182,071 bales in the United States for 1915. As to how such an increase could occur when the seed crop is short 709,566 tons is a problem for your experienced judgment. The figures prove conclusively that the manipulations of this gigantic gain have deprived the cotton producers of several million pounds of lint cotton that should have brought them 12 cents per pound."

Nearly two years ago an article appeared in Farm and Ranch describing the events leading up to the organization of a farmers' and business men's cooperative gin at Hillsboro, Texas. In that article it was stated that one oil mill company up to about a year before the article was written had owned or controlled three oil mills and 42 gins in the county, which virtually gave them control of the cottonseed business of the county. In this article it was also stated that: "The farmers of Hill county, and particularly those in the neighborhood of Hillsboro, became convinced that the mill-controlled gins were leaving about 130 pounds of lint on the ton of seed instead of the usual 30."

If the farmers of Hill county were correct in their belief the ratio of linters to seed was about one bale for each four tons of seed, or very near the ratio of one bale for 4 1-3 tons of seed reported for last year for the entire state.

Have mill-controlled gins in local instances in the past delinted the cotton farmer for the profit of the controlling mills? An investigation would reveal the facts and the farmer, the ginner, and the mill owner all have a right to have them revealed—Farm and Ranch, Feb. 19, 1916.

The preceding article from the Farm and Ranch is one of several comments appearing in the press of late regarding a report made public by the Warehouse Department showing statistical figures concerning an increase in the U. S. of 182,071 bales of linters in 1915, and a decrease of cotton seed crushed of 709,566 tons.

A reputable manufacturer of gin machinery in a very exhaustive article explains how in his opinion the increase of linters accrued. He states, that the cost of delinting cotton seed is very expensive and when the price of linters is low it does not pay the crusher to remove all of the lint, but when the price justifies the expense the seed are carefully delinted with new machinery. We have no reason to doubt the sincerity of the gentlemen's opinion, other than the reason that he sells delinting machines and gin machinery and it is perfectly natural that he should offer his explanation for the benefit of his customers.

Dismissing for the present the idea that the statistics show any ground for suspicion, and accepting the explanation of the said manufacturer as the real cause of the increase, we would like to know if the producer thinks it good business policy on his part to sacrifice to crushers of cotton seed over ten per cent of his cotton productions. The figures show that this was done in 1915, in other words they show that in the event the cotton crop is 11,000,000 bales 1,000,000 bales of linters will be produced. The figures further show that over 100 pounds of lint is delinted from every ton of seed and out of every 9½ bales of cotton produced a 100 pound bale of linters is made.

The big price paid for cotton seed at the close of the last season does not justify any more lint being left on the seed than when the price is low, by-products of cotton seed are higher than ever known before. When you sell your cotton seed at an average of 1 1-4 cents per pound, or $25.00 per ton, you are only receiving for the lint that much and the crusher in turn sells the same lint extracted and baled for 8 to 9½ cents per pound or $38.75 to $41.25 per bale more than the producer receives and if you apply these figures to the total production of linters it reveals that about $21,000,000 was received over and above what the producer received. If the high price of linters continues, which seems likely, it would be well for the producer to devise some means by which low grade cotton could be made into linters.

This evil along with others now existing in the primary marketing of cotton demands the immediate attention of producers and we know of no better line of action than co-operative organization. The Warehouse and Marketing Law has a cure for such evils and with the combined assistance of producers this matter can be speedily corrected.

A Bit of Advice.

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't Experiment.

If you suffer from backache; headaches or dizzy spells; if you rest poorly and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. In such cases the kidneys often need help.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially prepared for kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can Hondo residents desire more convincing proof of their effectiveness than the statement of a Hondo citizen who has used them and willingly testifies to their worth?

Mrs. C. H. Sayers, Hondo, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have done me a lot of good and I have no hesitation in recommending them to others who suffer as I did. They gave me great relief and I can safely say that they are the best kidney medicine that I have ever used."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Sayers had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Love labor, for if thou dost not want it for food, thou mayst for physic. It is wholesome for thy body, and good for thy mind. It prevents the fruits of idleness, which many times comes of nothing to do, and leads far too many to do what is worse than nothing.—William Penn.

Biliousness and Constipation.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepins preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, purify the stomach, liver and blood, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. ### Best Thing for a Bilious Attack.

"On account of my confinement in the printing office I have for years been a chronic sufferer from indigestion and liver trouble. A few weeks ago I had an attack that was so severe that I was not able to go to the case for two days. Failing to get any relief from any other treatment, I took three of Chamberlain's Tablets and the next day I felt like a new man," writes H. C. Bailey, Editor Carolina News, Chapin, S. C. No human being can arbitrarily dominate over another without grievous damage to his own nature.—Huxley.

How Mrs. Harrod Got Rid of Her Stomach Trouble.

"I suffered with stomach trouble for years and tried everything I heard of, but the only relief I got was temporary until last spring I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and procured a bottle of them at our drug store. I got immediate relief from that dreadful heaviness after eating and from pain in the stomach," writes Mrs. Linda Harrod, Fort Wayne, Ind. Obtainable everywhere.

Whooping Cough.

"When my daughter had whooping cough she coughed so hard at one time that she had hemorrhage of the lungs. I was terribly alarmed about her condition. Seeing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy so highly recommended I got her a bottle and it relieved the cough at once. Before she had finished two bottles of this remedy she was entirely well," writes Mrs. S. #### Vinol Restored Her Strength

Canton, Miss.—"I am 75 years old and became very weak and feeble from the effects of La Grippe, but Vinol has done me a world of good. It has cured my cough, built up my strength so I feel active and well again."—Mrs. Lizzie Baldwin, Canton, Miss.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

ON ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE

Texas is an empire in territory. Its people are cosmopolitan, liberty-loving and have high ideals. Its government and the Administration of Justice within its borders depends not upon one class, not upon one individual, not upon one department, whether Legislative, Judicial or Executive, but upon a co-operation of all individuals, all classes and all departments. The individual citizen is charged with this responsibility as a voter and as a juror. Too many of the best citizens fail to discharge these duties and thereby fail to contribute to the general good. Occasionally the Judiciary fails to measure up to that high standard of ability which should characterize those who wear the ermine. Sometimes it has been true that those charged with the enforcement of the law have been willing to listen to popular clamor or court public favor instead of following a keen sense of public duty.

A State has been defined as a body of free people united together for the common benefit to enjoy peaceably what is their own, and to do justice to others. The first duty of government, is to promote the happiness and prosperity of its people, and the fundamental purpose of law is to define legitimate activities of industry and society. Its purpose should be to extend its privileges to the honest and industrious, as well as to visit its penalties upon the lawless. I believe that common sense and business understanding are as necessary to full and complete justice as legal technicalities.

It is the abuse and not the use of our laws that is causing all this unrest. While I would not claim infallibility for our statutes, I do say that a very great per cent of the trouble is due to faulty administration of the law. It matters not how efficient a law may be, unless it is wisely and honestly administered. Injustice will prevail, and no amount of legislative enactments can improve such a situation. Efficiency can only be obtained by a wiser administration of the law. Improvements in the administration of justice can come through improvements in the ability of the men who administer it.

Much complaint is made against the inequality in the administration of justice, and this is wholly the fault of those who apply it. All men are equal before the law, and there can be no valid excuse for inequality in administering justice. But, after all, it needs the patriotic co-operation of all the people, looking alone to the greatest good to the greatest number, to bring good government, wisely administered, and thereby bring happiness and prosperity to Texas so far as government can do this. And it is not to be forgotten that good laws, wisely administered by patriotic public servants have much to do with the general welfare.

ON PREPAREDNESS AND OUR MERCHANT MARINE

There is one feature of preparedness with which I am more familiar than with any other, and that is the necessity for the creation of an auxiliary merchant marine, or, in other words, a merchant marine that will serve as an auxiliary for our navy in time of war and that will give our commerce a fleet of ships in time of peace. This is economic as well as military preparedness.

We cannot with safety rely upon our ability to purchase or charter suitable naval auxiliaries when a crisis appears. The very essence of preparedness for the Navy is to have these vessels of suitable types and construction where we can put our hands on them quickly. To prove this I need only tell you what happened when war with Spain broke out in 1898. We had no naval auxiliaries—no Army transports. We were utterly unprepared. We had to go into the market and buy immediately any and every kind of boat that could be hastily adapted to our purposes, and, of course, we paid fabulous prices for them. When a man or a government has to have something the other fellow has got, and that fellow knows that this something can't be gotten from anybody but himself, he exacts the highest possible price and gets it. This is human nature. The Navy alone bought at that time 102 vessels as naval auxiliaries and paid in round numbers the fabulous sum of $18,000,000 for them. There is no officer of the navy who knows about these purchases who won't admit that most of these vessels were junk.

The Navy Department sold 25, or one fourth of them, since the war for the paltry sum of $1157.638.

There were seven vessels, bought hastily for naval auxiliaries, at a total cost of $1,736,922. They were sold for $353,735.04, making a total loss to the government of $1,383,136.96, or 80 per cent of the original investment. Isn't this a monument to American intelligence? But we had to take anything we could get and pay any price the shipowner or broker asked, in order to send our fleet just a little way from home—to Cuba. This is the penalty we paid for our failure to create a real naval auxiliary. Unhappily we have learned nothing from that painful lesson and are in worse condition today than we were in 1898, so far as merchant marine naval auxiliaries are concerned, because our Navy is much larger and its requirements more exacting.

In addition to the $18,000,000 spent by the Navy, the War Department spent millions for vessels to transport troops. If we build a real and efficient naval auxiliary, we shall have the right kind of vessels to supply the Army with transports when it needs them.

We have not today under the American flag sufficient vessels to give our Navy, in case of war, the support and assistance which is indispensable to its efficiency.

ON COOPERATING WITH THE LEGISLATURE

The black clouds of trouble that hang over Europe and Mexico cannot remain many more years, and with their passing, the time should be propitious for an era of constructive thought, of constructive deeds and of constructive laws in Texas, not privilege or favor-giving laws, but laws that will wipe out the kinks by making business easier to carry on, investments easier to attract and work easier to obtain. At the next session of the legislature it will be none too early to begin this campaign, and the Administration of Justice in Texas demands that the people be given an opportunity, and with the aid of a broad-gauged legislative policy reap a harvest of prosperity.

Texas is in the embryonic period of its life. It is merely a lusty child that has survived all the troubles of infancy and now stands on the brink of mature manhood. It is for the people to imbue that manhood with the elements of strength and wisdom that foretell the greatest empire of civilization under the sun.

The political principle of a State is involved in its legislative acts. To foster industry, to encourage the investment of capital, to make more jobs for wage earners, to make more prosperous those who are already in business, to increase the production of Texas and to obtain better prices, better credit and better marketing methods for producers is especially needed now.

There should be a closer relationship between the people of Texas and the legislature. The people should take a deeper interest in the subjects that come before the legislature. They should watch with more scrutiny the acts of the legislators and they should make the legislators feel the great responsibility that rests upon their shoulders. The office of legislator is not a lucrative one, but instead of agitating a change in the system that now prevails, the time can be put to much better advantage by agitating the election of the best men. And that is not enough; after the election of the best men charged with the responsibility of advancing the material interests of the State, the people have a duty to perform as well as the legislator, and that is to manifest the deepest concern in the work of the legislature. At the next session of the legislature, and at the subsequent ones, I would like to see the wants and needs of every line of industry, of farming and of labor, considered in their minutest detail with a view to enacting that which will help industry and farming and labor. To do this the judgment and the ideas of the men who are engaged in these pursuits are needed. What is most needed for the aid and betterment of the people can be best ascertained by the legislature from men whose daily experiences have taught them what they know and the most accurate method of obtaining this is for the people to come before the legislature or write to those who compose it. To inaugurate the legislative policy that will do the most good in Texas, men of breadth and ability are needed. Indeed, the very atmosphere of Texas must vibrate with a desire to work out the problems of the merchant and farmer, the manufacturer and the laborer and all other lines of credit or in this State.

Made My Life Worth Living

"I feel it my duty to tell others what Chamberlain's Tablets have done for me," writes Mrs. L. Dunlap, of Oak Grove, Mich. "I have suffered with pains in my back and under my shoulder blade for a number of years, also with a poor appetite and constipation. I tried all of the remedies that I heard of, and a number of doctors, but got no relief. Finally a friend told me to try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. I got a bottle of them and they soon helped my stomach; by their gentle action my bowels became more regular. Today I feel like praising them to all who suffer as I did, for they have cured me and made my life worth living."

Showing Good at Oil Well.

Work is being rushed by the Hondo Oil & Gas Company on the well they are drilling on the Toby Koch farm. They had a great deal of trouble getting through a gravel bed they struck near the surface and had to spend several days digging through it. They finally got through and got their grout casing set, and they expect to make better progress from now on.

Interest has gradually been increasing and as the work is progressing the business men of the town are becoming more and more interested. A good many people have been going out every day to watch the machinery work and watch for the first signs of oil.

The directors of the company had a meeting Tuesday and voted to make a donation of one thousand dollars to the public institutions of the town, provided they were successful in finding an oil field here. The following letter was handed to the Mothers Club, the day they had their dinner, and a copy will be sent each of the other institutions.

LETTER TO MOTHERS' CLUB

This letter shows the public spirit of the men behind this proposition and it also shows their fairness to the institutions of the town. Very progressive citizens should feel it their duty to help out in a worthy cause like this.

May 3, 1916.

To the Mothers' Club,
Hondo, Texas,
Ladies:

At a meeting of the directors of the Hondo Oil & Gas Company held Monday night, May 1, 1916, at their office, the following resolution was adopted:

"It being the intention and purpose of the Hondo Oil & Gas Company to work with the people of Hondo in the development of this community and realizing that the public institutions of the town should receive their part of the benefits should we develop an oil field here, we hereby pledge our selves to make a donation of One Thousand Dollars, to be divided equally among the following institutions: Each organized church in the town of Hondo, The Mother's Club and the Independent School District."

The above amount to be paid and divided equally among the within named institutions should we succeed in bringing in an oil field from the well we are now drilling on the Toby Koch farm.

We make this offer free of any obligation on the part of the institutions and only ask for their good will in our undertaking."

Respectfully yours,
HONDO OIL & GAS COMPANY,
By J. W. Kemp, President.
CONTRIBUTED.

Weekly News Letter.

Following is a report of the crop conditions as reported to the State Department of Agriculture by its field agents up to April 22, 1916:

INCREASE IN COTTON ACREAGE.

Kinney County: Up to the close of the week Kinney county had not been favored with such rains as recently visited other sections of the state, and few crops had been planted. Owing to the lateness of the season very little corn will be planted, and there will be an increase in the cotton acreage.

Most of the dry land crops in this section are the sorghums, the acreage of which will not be materially changed by the drought. Ranges are in poor condition, and cattle, sheep and goats are suffering, many losses being reported. Bee keepers report heavy losses of bees owing to the failure of the honey crop.

CROPS ARE FINE.

Morris, Titus, Camp and Bowie Counties: The prospects for all crops grown in these counties, such as corn, cotton, potatoes of both kinds, peanuts, ribbon cane and all kinds of truck crops are better than for several years. The fruit and berry crops are fine and promise now to be the largest in several years. The farmers are right up with their work and the weather during the past week has been fine. One rain and some hail, but no damage that I can hear of from the hail. Week closed clear and spring-like.

CROPS SUFFERING.

Fort Bend and Wharton Counties: The last week has been as dry and unfavorable for farming as any of the previous ones, and all kinds of crops are beginning to suffer. All crops in this section had been injured by the frost of the 9th, some more, some less. From the best information I could get the prairie lands suffered less than the bottoms. In the Brazos bottom from Sugarland to Richmond the effect of the frost is visible all along the line. The potato crop has been badly injured, the estimates differing widely; some people claiming a ninety per cent damage; others more conservative claim fifty and sixty per cent damage. From personal investigation it would seem to me that the latter figures will be in reason. An early rain will of course materially change conditions.

SCALE AFTER FRUIT.

Cherokee, Smith, Gregg and Harrison Counties: The tomato crops in the vicinity of Alto, Rusk and Jacksonville are recovering rapidly from the effects of the freeze of the 9th. In most parts of this section corn is being worked and cotton planted except in the low wetland, which is yet too much under water for farm operations. In Harrison and Gregg counties some corn is being planted over on account of bad stands caused by the unusual drought of February and March and too much rain later.

The fruit crop in all this section appears to be making an unsatisfactory growth because of San Jose scale and the abnormal winter and spring conditions. Rain fell at Marshall on the 20th, but not enough to hinder farming.

FAIR CROPS PROMISED.

Mills County: Fine rains have fallen throughout this section and especially this county. Corn is looking well and will not fall short because of earlier set backs. Fall oats, injured by the freeze will make about half a crop, but spring oats are looking fine. The first of the cotton planted is just showing above the ground. The balance of the crop will be put in this week. Some wheat was planted in this county and is looking fine. Many farmers are planting peanuts. The fruit crop does not appear to be injured.

BOOMING OUT WEST

Taylor, Eastland and Callahan. The wheat fields are developing very fast and very much, and it is both a surprising and gratifying fact that the oat crop, supposed to be killed a month and more ago, has not only recovered but recovered so well that, in this section it will prove more satisfactory than last year. The cotton acreage will be (estimated) about 25 per cent less than last year.

GOOD CROPS IN TRAVIS

Crops throughout the southwest section of Travis county are in a very promising condition, and the farmers are all busy in their fields.

IN NORTH TEXAS

General crops as compared with last year throughout North Texas may be stated as follows: Wheat, 85 percent; oats, 90 percent; corn, 70 percent; other feed crops, 80 percent; gardens 75 percent; truck patches, 90 percent; Irish potatoes, 65 percent; sweet potatoes, 100 percent; chickens, increase, 100 percent; turkeys, increase, 25 percent; hog increase, 10 percent; cattle increase, 15 percent; horses and mules, increase, 15 percent. Cotton acreage compared with last year, 90 percent at least. About 5 percent planted.

SECOND REPORT

Cherokee, Smith and Nacogdoches. General condition of crops good in Cherokee, Smith and Nacogdoches counties. Rainfall has been about what was needed. Corn generally worked out and cotton planting being pushed rapidly, with some cotton already up. The strawberry crop in Smith county is good, and selling for good prices, but the acreage is greatly reduced. The tomato acreage is also reduced and much of the crop damaged by the recent freeze. The acreage in sweet potatoes and peanuts will be increased, and that in corn and cotton about normal. Reports have gone out that the fruit crop was not injured and that there would be a big peach crop. While the freeze seemed to damage the peaches very little, yet the vitality of the trees was low and general condition bad and there will not be a full crop of peaches. There are three sizes of peaches on the trees and many of the smaller ones are shedding and I do not believe there will be more than half a crop. It is raining today.

HARRIS COUNTY

The extended dry weather has nearly exterminated plant lice in this section, and this fact may cause large numbers of the lady beetles to starve out before the summer infestation of plant lice makes its appearance. In such event growers of vegetables and small stuff would have to do a great deal of spraying later on.

LEON, ROBERTSON AND BRAZOS

Weather: Dry. Temperature: Below normal. Corn: Acreage, normal if not slightly increased, but stand bad. Plant about recovered from frost. Cotton: Acreage about same as last year. Fifty or sixty percent planted; stand very bad, with land too dry for germination. Peanuts and feedstuffs, acreage increased; oats, below normal. Insects: Some complaint of chinch bugs and bud worms in corn.

Avoid Spring Colds.

Sudden changes, high winds, shifting seasons cause colds and grippe, and these spring colds are annoying and dangerous and are likely to turn into a chronic summer cough. In such cases take a treatment of Dr. King's New Discovery, a pleasant Laxative Tar Syrup. It soothes the cough, checks the cold and helps break up an attack of grippe. It's already prepared, no mixing or fussing. Just ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery. Tested and tried for over 40 years.

FARMERS DENOUNCE LOONEY'S ADMINISTRATION

HEAD OF UNION SCORES ATTORNEY GENERAL FOR POLITICAL SUITS.

Claims He Is An Enemy to the Organized Farmer.

Fort Worth—Characterizing Mr. Looney's administration as a failure from the farmers' viewpoint, and charging that official with having made "legal criminals out of more honest men than any one who ever administered the law in the history of Texas," H. N. Pope, President of the Farmers' Union of Texas, yesterday issued a statement to the membership of his organization urging them to cast their ballot for Mr. Looney's opponent in the coming primaries. Mr. Pope's statement follows:

"The Farmers' Union as an organization is non-political and non-sectarian, but all officers and members of the Union are expected and urged to perform their civic and religious duties, and they do so without in any manner committing the Union to their views. Any member of the Union owes first allegiance to government, and no member of our organization can render the most capable service to the cause of agriculture who neglects his duty as a citizen."

"In the present campaign I consider the issues involved in the contest for Attorney General of paramount importance to the farmers of Texas, and after giving due consideration to men and measures at issue, I have concluded to cast my ballot for Hon. John W. Woods for Attorney General of the State of Texas."

"The prohibition question is not an issue in this contest, for there are only two candidates, and both of them, like myself, are prohibitionists, and I am sure that no candidate for office can afford to damage our cause by injecting factional fights within the prohibition party. The elimination of the prohibition question leaves every man, pro or anti, to pass judgment upon the business issues involved in the campaign, which the people of Texas should settle at the polls. That question is, shall the antitrust law be used for political or business purposes? Shall it be used to prevent unfair competition, or to build up a political machine?"

We have, during Mr. Looney's administration, witnessed almost continuous prosecution of the business interests, numerous pains, penalties, fines, compromises, etc., have been imposed. He has made legal criminals out of more honest men than any official who ever administered the law in the history of Texas. The newspapers have carried inspired articles under Austin date lines, announcing great victories for the people, but I defy Attorney General Looney to show any one has profited by his litigation, except the lawyers and Looney's political friends whom he has forced on the official roster and on the pay roll of corporations.

Looney's Suite Great Victories for the Lawyer.

"These antitrust suits have been great victories for the lawyers. Many thousands of dollars have gone to them in fees; political debts have been paid; industry stifled; the people deluded; and an effort has been made to build up a political machine to levy toll against the people. When the politicians dance around the flesh pot of industry, the farmer pays the fiddler."

"The most important litigation, from the standpoint of penalties collected, was that of the suits against the oil companies. Happily in this particular instance, as in most all other cases, every farmer can do his own investigating. He does not need political mathematicians to figure it out for him. The lamp that illuminates his fireside will give him all the light he needs on the subject, for every farm home consumes the products around which these law suits have sprung. The farmer knows the price he pays for kerosene since these suits were filed was never higher, and his newspaper informs him that the dividends of the oil companies was never greater. The same may be said of farm machinery, implements, lumber, vehicles and all commodities the farmer buys, and which at any time has been involved in antitrust litigation."

"Come with me, Polly!" cried he as the man staggered back. "I'll take you home if you don't hate me too everlasting much to let me walk beside you."

"Oh, Tom! I never meant to do it. It slipped, truly. The egg. I mean."

"You proud little thing! And you let me think you meant it! Then I'm sorry about everything I've ever done. I've been a nasty brute and am heartily ashamed of myself. But I hope I'm a man now. The world makes one look at things differently, doesn't it? We all need to get out and be shaken up a little."

"Indeed, yes!" agreed Polly, and, later, when they had reached her steps and Tom leaving, she asked:

"Won't you come to see me, Tom? I'm afraid we can't talk over the good old times at home, but we can babbie at least about future prospects. We have that in common, although mine are not as rosy as I had expected."

Tom promised eagerly. "Polly Brown's the prettiest girl I've seen in New York," was his comment to himself going home. "I shall certainly try to make up for lost time while she is here. What a fool I've been all these years!" Then whimsically, "I wonder what mother would say?"

But he need not have worried, for Polly got this letter the next morning from her father:

"Dear Daughter: Aunt Peg got sick and went home last week. Widow Watterson took pity on a lonely old man and sent in the finest things to eat you ever tasted. Of course I had to take the dishes back and fixed a broken water pipe for her. She's a fine woman, Polly. It's terrible how I've misjudged her all this time. Hope you are well."

A FAMILY FEUD

• LOUISE OLIVER.

Polly Brown and her father lived on one side of the paling fence that ran from the street to the back lot and Tom Watterson and his mother lived on the other.

Polly Brown grew up to hate Tom Watterson and Tom had been taught to dislike the Brown girl. Things had been much worse since the incident of the egg. It really was an accident, for Polly never meant to hit Tom in the back with it. She knew it was past the minute she discovered the hidden nest in the chicken coop, and, picking it up gingerly between her thumb and forefinger, she had aimed over the fence into the back lot. But the egg slipped, and just then Tom straightened up from his weeding. Polly closed her eyes for an instant as she heard it hit. Then she lifted her chin two inches and walked majestically into the kitchen.

After that Tom called her "that little Brown cat" and deliberately let the grass go three weeks without cutting so the dandelions would seed again and blow over.

Polly had a voice, and it was the summit of her ambition to go away to study.

"There is no one in Stolway to teach me," she complained. "If I only had training I could open a studio of my own and give vocal lessons here. Can't I go, father?"

"Well—you can write to Aunt Peg, and if she can come and keep house for me for a year you can go to New York. I guess I have enough saved for that. The only thing I hate about the whole business is that your Aunt Peg is such a blamed bad cook! Anyway, you'd better ask her to come!"

Aunt Peg came and Polly went, with enough money to keep her ten years in Stolway, but by compression and stinting it might stretch for six months in New York.

Tom had been studying law—odd hours out of the store and at nights—for a period of three years. About the time Polly went away, he passed his examinations at the bar.

Three months after Aunt Peggy had been cooking bad meals for Mr. Brown, a third cousin of the Wattersons in New York told Tom that he had a splendid opening for him there. So Tom bade his mother good-by and went to the city of skyscrapers.

One night Polly, feeling particularly blue and lonely in her ugly little room, desired to take a walk down Broadway, contrary to the good advice of her one or two friends in town. But the windows fascinated her and made her forget that she was poor and lonely.

Tom, rather new to town, decided the same evening to walk up Broadway.

They met at Herald square, looked fairly into each other's faces and then quickly away. In all the immense desert of New York they avoided this little oasis of friendship. But Tom remembered the egg and the cat and the roof, and Polly the seeds and the dog and the chickens. He wandered up to Forty-second street, she down to Twenty-third.

Polly turned. So did Tom. Polly stopped to look into a window.

Someone said, "Hello, girlie, nice night!" in a strange masculine voice and linked his arm familiarly through hers.

Polly shrank back frightened. Then she suddenly saw Tom rushing at her tormentor like a thunderbolt and swing his right fist under the man's nether jaw.

"Come with me, Polly!" cried he as the man staggered back. "I'll take you home if you don't hate me too everlasting much to let me walk beside you."

"Oh, Tom! I never meant to do it. It slipped, truly. The egg. I mean."

ON THE CITIZEN'S PART IN GOVERNMENT.

A large part of mankind still regard government as something quite apart from the main business of life—something which is undoubtedly necessary to enable them to attend to their business, but only incidental or accessory to it—a function to be performed by some one else with whom they have little or no concern, as the janitor of an apartment house whom somebody or other has hired to keep out thieves and keep the furnace running. In reality, government is an essential part in every act of all the conductance of human society. If it be bad, it is bad in all; if it is good, success comes accordingly to man and society. The latest and most far-reaching of the earth have been for centuries wilderness and desert, in comfort and prosperity, but lands that have always been in the past, are today filled with warehouses and schools, with romance and vice, because of bad government, while under good government in luxury and comfort flourish on the most sterile soil and under the most vigorous climate.

Men may leave all this part of the business of life to others and treat it as no concern of theirs, men may voluntarily elect to play no part in the control of the affairs which make up their daily life and to play no part in the working out of the great questions upon which the prosperity of their country, the future of their children, and the welfare of the race depend; but they need not flatter themselves that these things are matters apart from them, or that they are leading free and independent lives. Abstention is impossible under the conditions of modern life and modern popular government. Men must either govern or be governed; they must take part in the control of their own lives, or they must lead subject lives, helplessly dependent in the little things and great things of life upon the will and power of others.

After many centuries of struggle for the right of equality there is some reason to think that mankind is now entering upon a struggle for the right of inequality. It remains to be seen how democracy will work under these new conditions. Another lesson the experience of popular government has already made plain is that the art of self-government does not come to men by nature. It has to be learned, faculty in it has to be acquired by practice. The process is long and laborious, for it is not merely a matter of intellectual appreciation, but chiefly of development of character. At the base of all popular government lies individual self-control, and that requires both intelligence and a willingness to do justice.

Some races appear to be incapable of continuing in the support of a common political ideal beyond a certain point. The races that have this capacity to the highest degree persist and rule the world; the people that have it to a low degree lose their national entity and cease to govern.

ON OUR COMPLICATED LEGAL SYSTEM.

The simplification of court procedure is an object which has always been sought and desired to be obtained by law-respecting and abiding men, and will continue to be, until the result is reached that litigants may have their rights vindicated and their wrongs redressed without delay. There can be no controversy about what we want to do, but the question to decide is how to do it. When in the absence of legislative enactments the vigilantes administered what they believed to be justice between man and man, it was not encumbered by any political speech making from the bench, or by any complicated machinery of appeal and delay. This is not an argument for a return to those primitive and forcible methods, but is employed as a preface to the statement that in Texas we are burdened with legal machinery which contributes to the endless chain of judicial contradictions rendering it impossible for the layman and uncertain for the lawyer to have an exact knowledge of the law, or of the trend of judicial construction.

We have in this State eighty-three district courts, nine courts of civil appeals, one court of criminal appeals, and one supreme court. All appeals in civil cases from the district courts go first to the Court of Civil Appeals and from that court on applications for writs of error, to the Supreme Court. All appeals in criminal cases go direct to the Court of Criminal Appeals, which is the court of last resort in such cases. And it is significant that the Court of Criminal Appeals is up with its work, while the Supreme Court, working just as laboriously and diligently, is far behind with its work. In this connection it may well be observed that when the present arrangement about the Courts of Civil Appeals was instituted under the constitutional amendment of 1891 only three Courts of Civil Appeals were provided for, and the last imposed upon the Supreme Court of harmonizing their conflicts with a small one compared with that which now exists when there are nine Courts of Civil Appeals. Surely no just complaint will be made against the Supreme Court for being behind with its work, but rather against the complicated system which we have. However, in my opinion, the chief cause of the trouble has not yet been stated. The greater part of it does not, in my judgment, lie in the appellate courts, but in the trial courts. We must improve conditions there. The salary paid to district judges should be made such as to induce men of ability and capacity to seek those positions. Of course, many of our district judges now are men of ability. I hope I may be permitted to say, with entire respect, that many of them are not. Whenever the personnel of the trial judges of this State is so elevated that the men who occupy them will be above employing their positions for political preferment, yielding to the clamor of one faction or another in the community, or of doing anything else except to fearlessly administer justice then and not till then will the well founded complaints which exist against the law's delays cease.

Vice President Marshall

ON INDIVIDUAL'S RESPONSIBILITY TO GOVERNMENT.

It cannot be said that it is the system of government which is wrong. It is the unjust use of the system. It has not been the use, but the misuse, of the powers of government which has produced the discontent in the minds of men.

Equitable enforcement of the laws can never be made to rest upon the office-holders of the land. It must rest upon the individual. The people's rule does not depend necessarily upon the system of government under which they vote. Good or bad government must go back to good or bad citizenship, to intelligent or ignorant, to honest or dishonest electors. American democracy was intended to mean, and I believe does mean, something more than selecting officers.

The individualism of Thomas Jefferson is not dead. It has not moldered back to dust in the grave at Monticello. It walks the earth this day knocking at the door of rich and poor, of wise and ignorant alike, calling upon all men to make this age the millennium of statecraft, wherein no one shall claim to be master, and all shall be glad to be the servants of the Republic.

America has no right to be unless she stands for man and for the rights of men. Evils are abroad in the land, now as always. Notwithstanding our boast, our government is not of and by and for the people. Yet, I make bold to say that it is still a representative democracy. Our co-ordinate system of government was formulated by Thomas Jefferson, and many a man wholly ignorant of Jefferson's theory of government is now proclaiming himself a Jeffersonian Democrat. Public speakers and the public press have been giving voice for twenty years to the fact that this is not a people's government. It has been shouted that the bosses are in control from ocean to ocean; that their machines have taken over the politics and legislation of the country, that they have prevented the people from crystallizing our ideals into enforceable laws. To be sure, we have had bosses and we have had machine politics in America. We have had legislation which, in enactment and construction, has not tended to promote the ideal of equality and the opportunity for honest success. But it has also been loudly proclaimed that the people, if they could only get a chance to express themselves, would declare in unmistakable terms their belief that this system was vicious, that they would smash the machines, dismiss the bosses and select officials who would always stand four-square with the theories of the fathers of the republic.

As a matter of fact, opportunity has been given us during the last three or four years to agonize over conditions and correct them; revealing to us what we should know all along; what, indeed, we had known, but had been allowed to forget; this is a government, not of stocks and bonds and mortgages, not of factories, and mines, but a government of men—men who will neglect the common good in looking after their own welfare, unless they are touched with the weight of that responsibility which rests upon them as individual citizens.

INDUSTRY IS SUFFERING FROM LEGAL BLACKMAIL

GOVERNMENT MARKING BACK TO TORTURE-RACK METHODS.

Legal Trusts Have Texas By the Throat.

Editor's Note.—The following is the fourth of a series of articles by J. S. Cullinan, Chairman of the Texas Economic League, on the Administration of Justice, to which subject the League is now addressing itself.

By J. S. CULLINAN.

There is scarcely a business of any proportion in Texas that has not felt the blight of legal blackmail in one of its many forms. Many good citizens as ever lived in this or any other State have plead guilty to business crimes and paid fines. Most of these citizens were as honest as the members of the Legislature who placed the laws upon the statute books, as capable of understanding right as the lawyers who wrote their confession, and as conscientious as the government officials who interpreted the law and imposed the fines.

There is no greater tragedy in civilization than for an innocent man to confess guilt in order to escape prison, or for a good citizen to pay his government a ransom in order to save his property from confiscation, and a government that tolerates such a procedure will soon wither and die, and it deserves to do so. A man who is a thief ought to be sent to jail and a business that is dishonestly conducted ought to be destroyed. But honesty should never be penalized by law, and a government that does so is organized anarchy, and the men responsible for such a condition are incompetent servants and undesirable citizens.

The methods of torturing people into a confession of guilt were tried out in the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Centuries, when the thumb-screw and pillory were instruments of law, and the records of that day show that almost every one whose flesh was peeled or whose bones were bent by these legal influences confessed to nearly any crime demanded, and one public official in the Fourteenth Century advanced as a reason why he should retain office, that he had wrung nine thousand confessions from as many suspects. These legal implements, reinforced by the torch, were used in a limited way in this country until prohibited by Congress in 1839. They have been condemned as unfair, inhuman and criminal, and ought not to be revived either through ignorance, accident or design in any disguised form today. The substitution of the laws' delay for the thumb-screw, and the threat of tremendous penalties for the pillory bring about the same sort of pain to property as these torture racks visited upon the people in the days of the Spanish Inquisition, and will as quickly produce confessions, equally as horrible.

About ten they drove over to the junior Crawford home.

"Real sight old place, ain't it?" said Mrs. Fennimore when they came away. "And I do like Berenice. She's sweet as a tea rose. I declare she is, with those big brown eyes and that fair, curly hair. Bless her heart! Just drive over to her grandfather's place, will you, Laura?"

Back on an old side road it was, a little gray house in a tangle of trees and grape vines, with a big well sweep at the back and the barn across the road. Mr. Crawford was struggling with the well, trying to draw up a pail, and Laura hurried over to help him.

"Don't spill it, mind," he cautioned sternly. "Can't bear a mite o' damp or midew round my house. Some folks don't mind, but it makes me furtile chilly. Just set it down on that shelf by the sink, Laura. Much obliged."

"How be you, Tuck?" called Aunt Bethiah happily, coming up the path toward him, her full skirts brushing off leaves and cobwebs from the dry weeds. So sweet-faced and blooming she looked that Laura stared at her. And so did Tucker Crawford. Not such a vision had he seen in many years in his front yard. He wiped his hand off on his coat and gave it to her a bit shakily.

"Why Bethiah, how be ye?" he exclaimed. "Look just as young and pert as ever. When did you get over here?"

"Been East two weeks."

"Widow, too, ain't you?"

"These ten years, Tuck."

"Well, well. How pert you do look. His faded blue eyes lingered on her cheerful face hungrily. "Want a place as housekeeper, Bethiah? I've been looking 'round for a good, hard-working woman."

"No, thanks," she laughed. "I'm provided for, Tuck. I wanted to see you about Berenice, your grandchild. Our Rob's in love with her, and she with him. I want them to be married before I go back West. Now, I'll give Rob some money, enough to set him up, and I want you to look after Berenice; give her a nice wedding and some of her grandmother's linen and silver. I know she had a lot of it; probably right up in your garret this minute."

"Like enough it is," murmured Mr. Crawford, stroking his little pointed beard. "I ain't looked to see. How pert you look, Bethiah! I can't get over it."

After they had said good-by and driven down the road, the old man stood watching them, leaning his arms on the little rusty iron gate. His face wore a peaceful, satisfied smile. He had promised all Bethiah had asked—wedding clothes, old silver and linen even the housekeeper.

"Let 'em have it and enjoy them selves," he said. "Take about two hundred to start with, she said. And I got eight thousand in the bank at Williamson and four over in Putman. Guess we can give Berenice a weddin' like her grandmother had. Waitin' the flower of romance?"

He sighed. Sixty years back he had loved Bethiah Newell, or was it fifty? Now she stepped into his old garden and the flower of romance lifted its head at her coming and bloomed for another girl and boy.

He went back up the path smiling and nodding his head, talking softly to himself.

FLOWER OF ROMANCE

By KATE CONWAY.

"Oh, I've known Tuck Crawford ever since he was knee high to a grasshopper," said Aunt Bethiah placidly. "He won't hurt anybody, and I've never been afraid of him. He's got plenty of money hid down the well, I suppose, or under the mounting stone."

"Then it's a pity he doesn't dig up some of it for Berenice," said Laura passionately. "She has had to stay at home and take care of her father and all those children, five of them, ever since her mother died, and they're—well—not poor—I suppose, but always just getting by—don't you know what I mean, auntie? There isn't enough money for this and that, and Berenice can't even think of getting married for years and years."

"Has she got anyone picked out yet?" asked Aunt Bethiah.

"Has she? Why, don't you know she's engaged to our Rob?"

Mrs. Fennimore dropped her crocheting and looked over her eyeglasses at her youngest niece. The hope of the Fennimore family was Rob.

"I suppose," said Mrs. Fennimore, with just a bit of a sigh. "They were sweethearts when they were children. Rob is the kind of a boy to keep the flower of romance blooming for years. Is she nice, Laura?"

"Nice? She's just a darling, auntie. We'll ride over there this morning and you can see her. She's the winsomest girl you ever saw—just that, the winsomest."

"Willing to marry Rob?"

"Oh, yes. I tell you they've been engaged since his Junior year, but she has a big idea of duty, and her father needs her. But if their Grandmother Crawford would do the right thing they could afford to hire a housekeeper and let Berenice get married in peace."

"Always was too selfish to give a crow a crunch," Aunt Bethiah agreed. "We'll see what can be done. I never was afraid of Tuck Crawford and I ain't today. He needs a boss fearfully."

About ten they drove over to the junior Crawford home.

"Real sight old place, ain't it?" said Mrs. Fennimore when they came away. "And I do like Berenice. She's sweet as a tea rose. I declare she is, with those big brown eyes and that fair, curly hair. Bless her heart! Just drive over to her grandfather's place, will you, Laura?"
